

A collection of five different groupings of meditations for the Sundays of Advent, Celebrating the Light serves to assist faithful Christians in remembering to live in the light. Affirming that the season of Advent, while one of waiting and anticipation, is not a passive period, this collection of devotionals encourages Christians to expect the fullness of the light and to live in the ways of that light in the here and now. It calls believers to shine that light into the places where the darkness abounds and to offer the hope that comes with liberation and justice instead. Celebrating the Light includes five separate meditative themes for the season of Advent. Some of them follow traditional themes for each Sunday of Advent, others focus of lesser known traditions or creative approaches. They are offered for use in private and corporate worship settings in hope that they will bless readers as they actively wait in hopeful anticipation for the Advent of our Lord.
