

Pavilions of the Heart: The Four Walls of Love (Tauris Parke Paperbacks)

Lesley Blanch here takes the reader on a uniquely romantic journey to the settings caves, convents, harems and villas - where lovers have come together for a moment, a night or a lifetime. Her subjects are chosen carefully from those places in her travels where she has come upon a story that has fired the imagination. Some of the stories are of great and famous love affairs, others largely unknown - though no less intriguing. Blanch writes of Nelson and Lady Hamiltons scandalous affair in a suburban house in London; Pushkin and Countess Woronzovs trysts in a cave beside the Black Sea; Wagner and Cosimas Swiss villa; the doomed Carlotta and Maximilians palace at Chapultepec; Rossetti and Elizabeth Siddals hidden room in crumbling Chatham Place and Chopin and George Sands long years in her beloved Nohant. She resurrects Sultan Murads room in the Seraglio and the madrassa of Bibi Hanum - Tamerlanes favourite wife and tells the extraordinary story of Aurelie Picard, whose pavilion of the heart was deep in the Saharan desert.
