

SPLICE bridges the gap between contemporary cinema and intelligent discourse. The films and topics covered generally focus on popular, sometimes blockbuster, cinema, their popularity often excluding them from serious analysis. Published three times a year, Splice, the publication for studying contemporary cinema, embodies a practical solution for teachers and students of film and media studies and related disciplines. Vol 3 #1 December 2008): Crime on Film Special, including: the policier in popular French cinema (The Beat that My Heart Skipped, Read My Lips).
