

The Heart of the New Thought: A Lovable Philosophy of Simplest Construction

The Heart of the New Thought A Lovable Philosophy of Simplest Construction Written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox This book is noteworthy as an interpretation of New Thought. That which was vague, mystic, unreal, has become, in the hands of Mrs. Wilcox, a lovable philosophy of simplest construction. The backbone of this philosophy is The Power of Right Thought.

Startling as are some of the tenets expressed, they are provably true here and now. It is possible that the very simplicity of this book will encourage careless criticism from those who believe that genius and ambiguity are twin. But Mrs. Wilcox is ever the voice of the people: what she says is practical; what she thinks is clear; what she feels is plain. Let the people judge this book.
