

Thomas Carlyles Edinburgh Encyclopedia Articles

Thomas Carlyle wrote 20 articles for the Edinburgh Encyclopedia, and translated one other, from 1820-1823 as part of his literary apprenticeship. Sixteen of these were gathered and republished in 1897, but never, we believe, have all twenty-one ever been published together. In this volume, Editor David A. Todd does just that. For those interested in Carlyle and his writings, this should be a convenient source for study of these early compositions, while Carlyle was just entering the world of literature and still trying to establish a style, cramped as it might be due to the constraints of an encyclopedia.
