

Tifon (Spanish Edition)

An epic description of sea dangers. The strange case of Joseph Conrad, a writer born in Poland, who wrote some of the most beautiful descriptive novels of the English literature, has been presented in the history of literature as something exceptional. He was a sailor up to the age of forty, and Typhoon, as his other novels; reflects his experience in the sea. The description of the storm that attacks a ship in its way to Asia with a group of poor Chinese people returning to their mother land with their savings of life kept in little wood boxes, serves to make remarkable descriptions of the dangers of the ocean and to illustrate portraits of characters that go from the pusillanimous captain who cannot confront the danger up to the subordinates that end up saving the situation. It is a novel of constant suspense and a beautiful example of Conrads production.
