

What is Christianity? Lectures Delivered in the University of Berlin during the Winter-Term 1899-1900

Adolf Harnack - (1851-1930), German historian and theologian. Harnack was born in 1851, in a Lutheran family, as the older of a set of twins. After his mother's death in 1857, he became especially connected to his father, Theodosius Andreas Harnack, who was a teacher of homiletics and church history at the Lutheran University in Dorpat (a part of East Prussia; later, Russian province Livonia). Adolf's father's pious loyalty to Luther's ideas, combined with the scholarly approach to the matters of religion, made a decisive impact on Adolf Harnack's understanding of theology as vocation. When he was seventeen, Harnack wrote to his friend that he wanted to study theology not in order to be given the ready-made statements of faith, but in order to understand every statement of faith, and only then making them his own.
