

Type A+

When Quin Woodward Pua straight-A Asian-American extrovert from Georgia with a penchant for vodka, designer shoes, and older men receives her acceptance letter from Johns Hopkins Medical School, she is forced to make a decision between giving up her hard-partying man-eating ways and continuing her fabulous VIP lifestyle and pursuing a more glitzy and glamorous career. Type A+ is the memoir of her transition from MCAT-teaching pre-med free clinic volunteer to directionless, yet fabulous and resourceful, freelance writer in Washington, DC. Like many Asian-Americans, she butts heads with her first-generation Chinese father when she strays from his life plans for her to attend a top medical program. Quin is encouraged by my histrionic but loyal friends from an undiagnosed alcoholic roommate, to a bohemian BFFL, to a middle-aged playboy dermatologist boyfriend to follow her champagne-soaked dreams of becoming a journalist.
